ABSTRACT

This dataset represents the findings from the UNHCR's survey on the intentions and perspectives of Ukrainian refugees in Croatia, conducted in May 2023 in collaboration with Ipsos SA. It comprises data from 506 households, translating to information about approximately 1,400 refugees. The survey, administered online and targeted at refugees affected by the ongoing conflict in Ukraine, aims to shed light on their current situation, future intentions, decision-making reasons, and socio-economic status. This valuable data, collected through social media and instant messaging platforms, is critical for informing advocacy, programming, and decision-making by various stakeholders. To ensure representativeness, age and gender weighting was applied, using the latest EUROSTAT population figures. This dataset provides an essential baseline for understanding the needs and aspirations of Ukrainian refugees in Croatia, aiding in the development of targeted support and policy-making.
